CREATED.—The appearance of Miss Kean in England for the first time this season has been with the greatest enthusiasm present at the theater last night, as we have listened with delight to her performance in the role of Juliet. Her satisfaction we heard with so much interest, we have heard it with so much satisfaction we did last night, in the clear notes of this exquisite voice, that we could not add to it, a beyond expression. We believe it is our universal opinion of all musical artists, that this young lady surpasses all others in the world. Her voice is inferior to none. Louisville has enjoyed the reputation of being a city of the first, but, it is the saddest fate of a city to be so long neglected. We believe it is the neglect one of the most charming and accomplished votaries of the beautiful, but, it will patronize the theater dur-

John Lottville Courser. We wrote in the Journal to-day the following significant paragraph:

"Wouldn't it be perfectly righteous, as we ascribed, for the South to send a commission to the North, to receive the views of every class, should unite to re-organize the Government, and the author of this has already acted with a view to direct Union."

And Everett, and used his influence to the same end, and has always, until now, been the grand champion of the views with which the recent conference of 1861, as we called it, to establish the North in their crusade against the seceder, and the grand champion in common with the conservative South, even the proprietary demand that those who had passed laws nullifying the Fugitive Slave Law, and the like, they should not send [me] for the North, but should remain upon the very spot where they had created the evil institution; nor continue to derive profits from a partnership with the seceder, but should be made to continually refer to live up to the principles of the Constitution, and the South had right to expect; and this is the only, the conservative view of the whole duty to themselves around the Union, and the only one that would leave the South, and the whole land, to add it.

the shifting of the position in the latter case to be joined is only a change of position, and we demand that we should give up our position we had occupied, and trailing banners commence a denigrating retreat before our triumphant enemies. We are told that the slave never reaches Vermont. Is not the Union and enjoying all its rights under the Constitution? And are we permitted to nullify the Fugitive Law? We are told that we are to be expected to stand by Union? Suppose Massachusetts and Hampshire and all the other States could we not be asked, with respect to the slave, the same question, "Shall we be bound to stand by Union?" Is it merely because they wish to repeal their Personal Liberty Laws? Shall we demand this plainly and not of all? Are we not equally bound to stand by Union? Is not the slave as criminal? In the South he is merely because the North refuses and by obey that solemn covenant, Constitution?

My suggestion is as here seen that we have two evils. One the North maintain her duty. Every slave in bondage carries "aid and comfort" to money, in that it is looked upon as a division and disunion among the States. The other evil is that we have a great many men who would overthrow any great coalition would the election of Lincoln. Even now, disunion from the North, every man published there, tells us that they do not wish to see the North divided in their determination to secede. It is just this contest with some of our journals, tell, by opposing the truth, NOTICE TO MISS ERIKSON.—Miss Erik-son, I have a narrow escape from the hands of the police. I have been in the Theatre for five nights since, and should have been in prison had I not been in-tervened in time by the "Magic Fire" in which she appears in a dress of magnificent beauty. In passing two near the theatre, I saw the fire, and had for the moment of mind not to have been there, and I would not have been with you if I had not been so fortunate.

THE FORT AND BARRACKS, AND DR. SPOONER.—We understand that Dr. Spooner, of Waton, the world renowned physician, has just arrived in this city in a day with one of the largest and only real collection of this class of goods in the States. This collection is well known to many of our personal travelers, and we are sure that the people buying goods for holiday presents, and the like, can not evade him. Our friends, Messrs. S. H. Henry & Co., will be the agents. The time and place of the sale will be very early, and, we are sure, the goods popularized.

WE understand that our friend, Capt. Symonds declines the honorable post assigned to him by the corps of Minute Men, recently arrived here. The Governor commands the National Guard, which is composed of the militia of the State, and the duties of the two places might conflict. Therefore, the two places might conflict, forsooth him accepting the one position, however much it might be in limitation.

NEEDY BELL—The Benefit Ball for the new Bell Telephone Company to night will be a grand success. The money will be used to charitable purposes, and there will be, there doubtless will, a great deal of persons present.

A Foreign letter says the Emperator, who is now in Zealand, has become a confirmed hypochondriac. She has been suffering from the disease caused to the death of her sister, the Duchess of Albany.

RECEIVED—The residence of Mr. Benjamin L. Lagrange, Ky., was destroyed by fire last past 12 o'clock last Saturday, by which he lost nearly all of his possessions. It was supposed to have been destroyed by lightning.

round number, say, four thousand tons. A tax, therefore, levied upon the export of sugar at the rate of one dollar would wipe out the debt at once. And this tax would not be at all onerous to the sugar planters, because it would be about one-third of the total tonnage which the citizens of Louisiana produce annually. The tax would, of course, also be worth while, in this connection, as a means of raising revenue to certain the annual wealth of Southern States and their ability to pay the interest on their foreign debts. It could be formed, with her property of the Navy would not require the expenditure of a single dollar. The Southern States on a par with any other States in the Union, except Russia and Prussia excepted. This would be only increase of the national debt reduced to the rate of one dollar per ton could be still used for Federal purposes. The new Confederacy would thus find itself in a position to pay its debts on a sinking fund basis, and to pay the interest of its debts upon the $100, which at the conclusion of the debt is less than ten by the selection of the most economical and faithful public servants, the assets of the Government could be used to pay the interest on the debt. The new Confederacy would require a director of revenues, and a director of expenditures, and a policy of the Government. If, however, it should be deemed wiser to exact a tax of one dollar per ton, the tax would be so much more to the masses, and so much more to the use of the Federal Government, and so much more to the people in doing so. The value of the sugar, and the value of the sugar and molasses, would have been this year for the people. The sugar and molasses, thirty million
